AN ATHLETIC CODE FOR COACHES

PREAMBLE

Knowing that athletics has become an integral part of the total educational program of Alabama high schools; that the coaches of Alabama high schools have a tremendous responsibility in molding the ideals of young people; that such responsibility requires the services of men and women of high ideals with broad visions, education and profound human understanding; and in order that high school athletics may maintain its rightful place as an integral part of the total educational program; that the best interest of the high school athlete may be safeguarded; that the welfare of the coaching profession may be promoted; and that all members of the profession may observe proper standards of conduct in their professional relations, the Alabama high school coaches propose this code of ethics for its members.

ARTICLE I

Relationship to Athletes and Homes

Section 1. The coach should be fair and unprejudiced with the athletes and should consider their individual differences, needs, interests, temperaments, aptitudes and environment.

Section 2. The coach should discipline and, if necessary, dismiss players who disregard good sportsmanship.

Section 3. Athletes have a right to expect the coach to have a genuine and up-to-date knowledge of that which he proposes to teach.

Section 4. The coach should give careful attention to the physical condition of players at all times, particularly at the time of each contest.

Section 5. The athletes should have the confidence that their coach will always support the decisions of the officials.

Section 6. The coach should teach his team to play fairly, not with "dirty" tactics. Games should be played hard but not as "blood and thunder" or "survival of the fittest" contests.

Section 7. The coach must realize that even though his first responsibility is to the athlete, the family must not be ignored. Understanding is the first essential of any successful operation. Cultivation of parents is the surest and safest way to guarantee the long range success of any athletic program.

Section 8. A great coach is the one who has the respect and admiration of the players. It is hardly coincidental that the coach is usually the producer of champions.

ARTICLE II

Relationship to the School, Administration and Student Body

Section 1. Work of the coach must be an integral part of the school system with its education contribution.

Section 2. The coach should show mastery of the principles of pedagogy and consequent improvement in teaching as well as coaching.

Section 3. The coach must be loyal to superiors in making athletics fit into the general school program.

Section 4. The coach should insist upon high scholarship and help enforce all rules of eligibility.

Section 5. At every opportunity the coach should urge the student body to be polite, courteous, and fair to the visiting team. Game assemblies, classes, informal meetings and community gatherings should be used for this type of education.

Section 6. The coach should give support to all endorsed activities of the school; it is through the support of other activities that the coach may expect reciprocal support of all fellow faculty members.

ARTICLE III
Relationship to the Community

Section 1. The coach should cooperate with the community in making a character-building athletic program.

Section 2. The coach should counteract unfounded rumors of questionable practices by opponents, since rumors of this type will tend to weaken the cause of athletics in general as well as interfere with good community and school relationships.

Section 3. The coach should not become obligated to supporters in a manner that will interfere with his responsibility to the welfare of the athletic program.

Section 4. By the display of good sportsmanship at all times, the coach can set a fine example for the community to follow.

Section 5. The coach shall not take part in nor permit recruiting of athletes from another school's district.

ARTICLE IV
Relationship to Fellow Coaches

Section 1. The coach should be a perfect host to the visiting team, coach and crowd. Treat them as if they were guests in your own home.

Section 2. The coach should exhibit good sportsmanship toward the officials and opposing coaches.

Section 3. The coach should guard very carefully "off-the-record" statements about fellow coaches; to criticize or condemn an official, an opponent, or a fellow coach is the surest way to create hard feelings. Sincerity and praise will surely avoid trouble, and in the long run will promote the best interest of the game.

Section 4. A coach will report immediately any violations of the state rules to the proper authorities when it comes to the coach's attention. It will be deemed highly unethical to withhold information until a so-called strategic time for revealing it.

GENERAL INFORMATION

A service fee of $30 per calendar year is charged each coach desiring to join the Association. The calendar year begins August 16 and ends the next August 15. The membership card entitles coaches to voting power and serves as a pass for the "coach and one" to all events sponsored by this Association and to all sanctioned and state-sponsored events (championship playoffs) of the Alabama High School Athletic Association.

The activities and projects of the Association at present are (1) All-Stars Sports Week; (2) Rules Clinics; (3) Coaches Award Program; (4) publication of its directory; (5) the co-sponsorship of the Alabama High School Sports Hall of Fame along with the AHSAA. The Association offers some service to coaches and schools in job placement problems.

CODE OF ETHICS FOR COACHES

1. I will consider the health of my players, not use anyone who is sick or injured, and refer to a competent physician all evident physical or organic defects.
2. I will integrate my philosophy of athletics with the general philosophy of education and instill proper attitudes in my athletes so that they may become aware of the role of athletics in education.
3. I will conduct myself so as to be a credit to the educational profession and to encourage greater player and spectator sportsmanship. I will always use ethical methods in scouting a team. I will teach and practice true sportsmanship at school, on the street and with the public.
4. Whereas I will strive to win, I will also attempt to be graceful in losing; I will be modest in victory and gracious in defeat.
5. I will respect officials, compliment them on a good job, and level protests at them only through the Alabama High School Athletic Association.
6. I will treat visiting teams, coaches and officials as guests.
7. I will wholeheartedly maintain good relations with other coaches. I will not be guilty of repeating rumors or stories that will be detrimental to the good name of sports. I will offer congratulations win or lose and never be guilty of "pouring it on."
8. I will establish coach-player relationships on the basis of mutual respect and confidence.
9. I will not approve commercialism, solicitation, subsidizing, or professionalism entering into high school athletics.
10. I will maintain cordial and cooperative relations with the school administration and faculty. I will be loyal to the school administration and my fellow coaches.
11. I will subscribe to the theory that athletics is for the eligible students who live in my school community.
12. I will subscribe to the principle that in high school athletics the total welfare of the participants and students comes first.

RESPONSIBILITY IN ATHLETICS

This section is designed to point up some important facts about interscholastic athletics and does not contain the official rules and regulations of the AHSAA. Through united and cooperative effort, manpower and institutional power can be harnessed for the welfare of a greater number of participants, schools and communities.

Good administration keeps athletic activities within reasonable limits and in proper relationship to the overall educational program.

An aggressive and positive program tends to conscript the efforts of the entire school community in wholesome sports. Teamwork insures progress only when leadership is sound and effective.

A great deal of effort is required to harness the powerful forces connected with athletics. The results and benefits are worth the necessary time and energy.

The end result of a good school program is CITIZENSHIP.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION MEMBERS

Will Want To –

Attend school athletic contests.

Foster a good feeling in the community towards the school's program.

Insist that all employees of the school board consider sportsmanship as an ultimate aim in the school program.

See the athletic program make its contribution to the growth and development of the whole student.

Encourage participation in a well-rounded program.

THE SUPERINTENDENT

The superintendent of education is responsible for all phases of the educational program. The athletic program is on display before the public more than any other part of the entire school program.

The superintendent may delegate authority, and this authority may be delegated through the chain of command. However, no one can delegate RESPONSIBILITY. Each person must find a way to meet responsibility. This responsibility must be met!

The superintendent must show an interest in all phases of his program and make his policies on athletics clear to principals, coaches and other responsible persons.

How?

1. Demonstrate an interest by attending athletic contests involving schools in that system.
2. Make board policies relating to a sound athletic program.
3. Encourage a good sportsmanship program for all schools.
4. Set up a policy for correcting individuals at fault when a problem in this area arises.
5. Let the public and all school personnel know that he expects local, state and national high school rules and regulations to be followed.

THE PRINCIPAL

The principal must establish a program on conduct that will have an impact on the school and community at all athletic events.

1. Be a good sport himself!
2. Be certain that all athletics are controlled by school authorities.
3. Enforce eligibility rules and policies of the school and state.
4. Acquaint parents with the school's athletic policy.
5. Promote the sportsmanship program through all civic organizations.
6. Make use of newspapers, radio and TV in promoting good sportsmanship.
7. Insure good game administration and supervision by providing for the following:
 - (a) Sound business practices
 - (b) Adequate facilities for spectators
 - (c) Parking
 - (d) A well-trained announcer on the public address system.
 - (e) Adequate security
 - (f) Halftime program
 - (g) Private dressing room for officials
8. Establish a policy of making the visiting team and other guests feel welcome and respected.

THE FACULTY Should —

1. Enthusiastically support the athletic program.
2. Give straight-from-the-shoulder talks at every available opportunity on the conduct of students at athletic contests.
3. Feel obligated to help increase school spirit, the understanding of rules, and conduct of spectators.

THE COACH

The coach is the most powerful force connected with athletics. As the conduct of the coach goes, so goes the conduct of the team and spectators! The coach's personality is reflected in the team and its followers.

The coach should:

1. Treat the visiting coach, team and crowd as if they were visiting at home.
2. Support the decisions of the officials at all times in the public forum and criticize only through the AHSAA.
3. Keep a well-disciplined and orderly bench throughout the game.
4. Keep emotions and actions under control.
5. Do not have a confrontation with game officials at any time during their presence at the game site.

THE PUBLIC

An informative program on sportsmanship and game ethics should be conducted. This program, designed to give a proper understanding and appreciation of game rules and sports skills, must reach all community followers of the school team. The need for adherence to principles of fair play and proper attitudes for opponents should be stressed.

WHY? If the proper athletic program is to attain its maximum potentialities, it must be designed to cultivate proper citizenship traits.

HOW? The layman must be given facts regarding local, state and national rules and policies under which the school athletic program is conducted.

A school's athletic program must be conducted and supervised so that there is never a question of school control.

The athletic program can be a dynamic means of developing school and community spirit. The opportunity for developing citizenship through competitive athletics is unlimited.

CIVIC LEADERS

All civic organizations are dedicated to public service! If every organization in a community would give attention to setting the tone at athletic contests, good conduct and sportsmanship would prevail.

Public leaders can help by: supporting their teams – win, lose or tie; recognizing achievement and applauding good play by both teams; cooperating with school authorities in the development of a sound athletic program; remembering that school athletics is for the enjoyment of players and spectators!

PLAYERS

1. Treat officials and opponents with respect on and off the playing field or court.
2. Take victory or defeat in stride.
3. Accept decisions of the officials gracefully.
4. Never, during or after an athletic contest, criticize opponents or game officials.

STUDENTS

Students should work with the faculty, alumni, and community in establishing and maintaining good conduct at athletic contests.

1. Consider the opponents and officials as guests and treat them as such.
2. Support the team and coach and never second-guess either.
3. Support the cheerleaders and cooperate with them enthusiastically.
4. Accept the officials' decisions as final.
5. Show self-control at all times – during and after the game.
6. Realize that it is the students' privilege and duty to encourage everyone to live up to the spirit of fair play.

CHEERLEADERS

Cheerleaders are in a position to control the reactions of the student body and crowd. This should be done in the interest of good sportsmanship.

HOW?

1. Serve as hosts to visiting cheerleaders and cooperate with them to the best interest of the contest.
2. Visit the opposing cheerleaders at halftime.
3. Select cheers that will encourage your team but not insult your opponents.
4. Be a desirable guest when attending games away from home.
5. Hold well-planned pep rallies.
6. Select and perfect good cheers and signals and be discriminating about where and when to use them.

PUBLIC ADDRESS ANNOUNCER

The person on the public address system should be one who can be impartial at all times. Remarks should be kept to a minimum, giving only the essentials!

Be familiar with the game officials' signals.

A good announcer will help to ease a rough situation by his support of the officials.

The announcer who attempts to second-guess or predict officials' decisions is OFF BASE.

The announcer has a responsibility for the promotion of good SPORTSMANSHIP!

THE MEDIA

Sportswriters and sportscasters have a tremendous influence in molding public opinion and behavior at athletic contests. They often have opportunities to point out good and bad practices to the public.

Media representatives will only be effective when they are constructive and impartial.

They should give constructive examples of sportsmanship in the press and on the air.

Give accurate and unbiased facts at all times.

They should be an example of a good loser when their home teams lose.

Know the game they are reporting and help inform the public on the rules of the game.

Support the decisions of the coach and no second-guessing him.

BANDS

Bands are a powerful force at athletic contests.

The band director should work out programs with bands of the opposing schools in order to build good will between the schools and communities.

A cooperative effort on the part of the bands at pre-game and halftime activities will have a dynamic influence on team followers.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

1. Keep in mind that a student spectator represents the school just as the athlete does.
2. Realize that the good name of the school is more valuable than any game won by unfair play.
3. Lead other spectators to respect the officials by setting a good example and by accepting decisions of officials without question.
4. Respond to the yells of the cheerleaders especially when the team is losing.
5. Be courteous to the visiting team both on and off the field of play.
6. Impress upon the community its responsibility for self-control and fair play at all athletic contests.
7. Give fair, courteous and truthful accounts of athletic contests in local school papers.
8. Express disapproval of abusive remarks from the side line.
9. Encourage the discussion of fair play, sportsmanship and school spirit through class work, auditorium programs and club programs.
10. Commend and applaud good sportsmanship by the visiting team.

"The True Sportsman first has command of himself, after which his leadership is effective. He places the interests of his team first and he has a burning desire to win."

"He is too proud to look for excuses and too anxious to improve to have time for squawking."

"He is too discreet to question an official's decision and man enough to forgive another's error. He is humble in victory but not humiliated by defeat. He has too much self-control to embarrass friends or opponents. He will never spoil another's victory with an alibi."

"SPORTSMANSHIP is identified better by actions than sermons."

ATHLETICS IN SCHOOL PROGRAMS

Athletics help make up the total school program and must be an integral part of the curriculum. The ideal school program includes a means for each individual to take part in many types of activities. One of these activities involves athletic participation.

Performance in athletics and the appreciation of sports skills is a definite part of enjoyable living. A school program must furnish the opportunity for each individual to develop athletic skills through participation. This satisfies the natural competitive urge and produces civic usefulness.

Participation in athletics helps improve and enrich the lives of the participant. The ability to recognize athletic proficiency and appreciation of a well-played contest is part of the well-balanced individual. The development of the individual's ability to the maximum makes a great contribution toward achieving and maintaining a physically fit nation. Cooperation and efficiency are enhanced in the individual and the group through striving as a unit to achieve a definite objective.

The school athletic program produces endurance, alertness, strength and coordination for the participants. Youth is endowed with a natural desire for physical activity and play. This desire can be used in the formulation of an athletic program that will insure social adjustment and the development of health habits.

If the athletic program is to serve its maximum purposes, the following principles must be adhered to:

1. It must be administered as part of the curriculum under complete control and direction of the school administration to prevent outside groups or individuals from exploiting the prestige of the school's team or individuals of such teams. If any financial or other type assistance is accepted from a group or individual, it must be without any strings attached.

All athletic contests should be planned and carried out so they will make an educational contribution to the lives of the participants and spectators. This will entail good game administration, beginning with the scheduling of contests, the advertising, officiating and the employing of sound business practices.

2. The athletic program must be for the welfare of all youth. Every effort must be made to secure the maximum participation and include the entire student body in a balanced program of intramural and interscholastic athletics. This will require planning that will provide the opportunity for a large number to participate in a variety of sports with a reasonable season limit for each sport. The varsity athlete will be performing the same actions that a large percentage of the student body performs but in a more skillful and specialized manner. The time spent in preparation for athletic contests and in participating in these contests will be so planned and budgeted that the individual will have the opportunity to take part in a complete educational program.
3. The coaching and instruction must be done by competent and certified teachers. The instruction and supervision of all activities will be performed by carefully selected and well-trained members of the school staff.
4. The health and physical welfare of the individual participant must always be the No. 1 objective. This will include proper training, health habits, protective equipment, equitable competition, and a limit on participation.
5. The athletic program should be conducted in such a manner that its contribution to the achievement of educational goals will justify the use of tax funds and other sources of income to finance the program. A worthwhile athletic activity should not have to depend upon gate receipts to be included in the program. The gate receipts will be handled in a businesslike manner and when necessary they should be supplemented from other sources. A sound budget tends to remove many of the pressures which in turn eliminate the evil of commercialization.
6. High school athletics must be conducted under rules which provide for equal competition on an amateur basis. Contests should not be arranged with teams or individuals that have too wide a difference in physical ability. This will require athletic rules and regulations that provide for interscholastic competition with similar age groups.

7. The participants and entire school and community must be taught the proper respect for and the observance of local, state and national rules and policies under which the school program is conducted and operated. Instruction in the rules and policies by which athletic programs are being conducted should be given to the school and community in order to insure complete understanding and appreciation of the program.
8. Training must be given to all non-participating students and the community in game ethics and proper conduct at sports events. This program will include the proper understanding and appreciation of the skills of each sport and the reason for adhering to the principles of fair play. The athletic program can be a dynamic means for developing school and community spirit. The opportunity for developing citizenship in this program is unlimited. If the program is to attain its maximum potentialities, it must be designed to cultivate proper citizenship traits, habits, and an appreciation and respect for others' rights and privileges.

KEY MAN MORE WAYS THAN ONE

You're the high school football coach. This is your time of the year. All over America thousands of young men are busy these days collecting new crops of callouses, building better blisters, and mangling with muscles.

Maybe you don't realize how important you are. You're building impressions that will last forever. A million kids are watching your every move – modeling themselves after their coach.

You take a lot of kidding. One of the stock stories for the Monday Morning Quarterbackers and Touchdowners concerns the high school coach in the little town. His season had been somewhat less than terrific. The only way he could have lost more games would have been to schedule more.

The practice field was across the highway from the school building in this suburban area. Each afternoon the young gentlemen with biceps and bruises would dress in the school basement and cross the road to the practice grid.

Thoughtfully, the city had provided a warning sign for motorists who were wont to come whizzing hell for leather down this particular artery. It said: "Drive carefully. Don't injure our players!" Below this someone had carefully written in with chalk: "Wait for the coach."

But of course, this is just a joke. You are probably the most influential man in your community in the youthful set these days. You can afford to do no wrong because all eyes are upon you. You set the examples.

There was the new assistant football coach who came to my high school. He had been a great college athlete, had a most pleasing personality, and within a day or two he was the hero of the squad. Possibly neither he, nor the merchants of my hometown, will ever realize how much he cost the men's clothing stores monetarily there. This particular professor of the shoulder-pads and shin-guards never wore underwear tops.

Within a week every member of the some 40-man squad had discarded underwear tops as passe. It was years after I left college before I went back to wearing underwear tops.

This same instructor in punts and passes set public speech classes in our school back to years. Since time immemorial, instructors have been trying to impress upon budding William Jennings Bryans that they should allow the hands to swing freely and naturally when addressing an audience. The coach always kept his hands in his pockets when speaking to a group, or making a pep talk. Furthermore, he'd jingle coins in his pockets while delivering his priceless forensics.

To this day when I get up before a crowd I frequently keep my hands in my pockets and finger loose change. I don't think I was any more impressionable than the average kid. Never underestimate your influence, Coach.

You've got an important job. You get hold of most of these youngsters just as they've reached the awkward age – the awkward age is that embarrassing period when the average youth discovers that he knows more than his father. He's setting aside the cocoon of youth for the robes of manhood. So, Coach, it's your job to impress upon the prospective star that athletic heroes have been coming and going for a long time.

People forget quickly. You are to emphasize that athletic fame dies as quickly as a tropical flower – and stays dead just as long. There's nothing as pathetic as the man who tries to spend the rest of his life living in the reflected glow of a greatness that's gone.

Tell him, Coach, that the fellows who jump up and yell their heads off when he tears around end for 20 yards today will have a hard time remembering his name five years from now. (Let me see, who WAS the captain of my senior team?)

Your most important job, Coach, is to let him know about the touchdown in the real game of life. Football is a good teacher. You can stress that team work and cooperation and living cleanly and giving his best pays off. But there's more to life than that. Much more.]

You know where the big payoff is. There's a little territory just north of the eyebrows. And the world wants to know what he's got up there. Bear down hard on this angle. That's the field on which life's big game is won – or lost.

So this is your assignment, Coach. It's a pretty big and serious one. Life's lessons are learned on the field of competition and you are the one who for the most part will be teaching these lessons.

So, Coach, you, like Caesar's wife, must be above suspicion. You've got to show the way. As you go, so goes the squad – for a mighty long time.

– Burns Bennett
